

Air waves are the property of all Americans.
Sinclair's intention to use them for the furtherance of their corporate political agenda is against the law.
They must not be allowed to get away with airing the right propaganda piece "Stolen Honor" only weeks before the election.

This is the sort of exercise of power we can expect if media consolidation continues. Locally produced programming, even if it too lacked a balance viewpoint, would be less threatening to our freedom of speech than this sort of centralized monopolization of ideas.

The FCC must work toward more media owners, not fewer, if America is to continue its role as lamp of liberty.
